

Community Energy Scotland

Community Energy Scotland has been involved in community led renewable energy projects in Malawi for over 5 years and has been involved in a number of projects.

The current link between Community Energy Scotland and Malawi is focussed around the delivery of the Community Energy Development Programme (CEDP). The main aim of the CEDP is to empower communities in Malawi to address their needs through the adoption of appropriate renewable energy technologies. The CEDP is one of four strands of the Scottish Government funded Malawi Renewable Energy Acceleration 'MREAP' programme which you can read more about here.

One of the key outputs of the CEDP is to promote learning and networking across the community renewable energy sector in Malawi and we are in the process of working with 12 Community Based Organisations (CBOs) over 12 Districts in Malawi to implement over 35 projects.

There is more information on the CEDP at www.communityenergymalawi.org.
