

May 2016 Scottish Parliament Election

Manifesto commitments relevant to Scotland's links with Malawi

21st April 2016 - NOT YET COMPLETE – Awaiting Scottish Labour Manifesto

The Scotland Malawi Partnership is a non-governmental and politically neutral network which exists to represent, coordinate and support Scotland's many civic links with Malawi.

In January 2016, together with the Network of International Organisations in Scotland (NIDOS) and the Scottish Fair Trade Forum, we submitted six manifesto asks to the five political parties currently represented in the Scottish Parliament. We look to publically share with our members relevant information from each of the manifestos of these five political parties in advance of the May 2016 Holyrood election.

We maintain our neutrality while ensuring our members are well briefed on political commitments which are potentially relevant to Scotland's links with Malawi. For the avoidance of bias, political parties are listed here in the order in which manifestos were published.

| Scottish Conservatives | “Scotland has played an important part in promoting equalities and social and environmental justice around the world. The Scotland Malawi Partnership has been one of the best examples of what Scotland can do in an international arena and we should continue to support the International Development Fund , increasing it to £10m every year.” (Pg 21) |
| Scottish Liberal Democrats | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - “Scottish Liberal Democrats will make sure that our approach at home and our liberal values, not least human rights, LGBTI equality and sustainable development, will guide our work internationally.” (Pg 29) - “We will continue to develop and deepen the relationships between Scotland and Malawi at governmental, community, educational and environmental levels.” (Pg 29) - “We will continue the work of Scotland’s Climate Justice Fund to support international action against climate change” (Pg 25) |
| Scottish Greens | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - “Westminster does not have a monopoly on international relations and diplomacy. Virtually every department of the Scottish Government has an international aspect to its work and both paradiplomacy (international relations conducted by subnational or regional governments) and citizen diplomacy (international relations conducted by civil society groups or NGOs) are becoming hugely significant on a wide range of international issues, from climate change to conflict resolution.” (Pg 45) - “We need better representation overseas. We should seek to establish a Scottish diplomatic service, tasked with representing Scottish interests abroad within the areas devolved to the Scottish Government” (Pg 45) - “Scotland needs stronger engagement with international institutions..[such as]... the United Nations, World Health Organisation and Nordic Council.” (Pg 45) - “We can do more to tackle global poverty and climate change. We will campaign to increase the Scottish Government’s International Development Fund and Climate Justice Fund, boosting our capability to fund overseas projects in support of the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals. Green MSPs will support work to embed policy coherence for development across Scottish Government decision-making.” (Pg 45) - “Scotland can speak up for the oppressed...” (Pg 45) - “Scottish MSPs would aim to position Scotland as a global peace hub...we would support establishing a Scottish peace centre tasked with researching conflict issues ” (Pg 45) |
| Scottish National Party | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - “We established Scotland’s Climate Justice Fund and have spent £6 million to date to help some of the world’s poorest communities adapt to the challenges of climate change. We will increase the Climate Justice Fund to at least £3 million a year for the next five years.” (Pg 29) - “We will support developing countries in the UN Climate talks process and help them minimise greenhouse gas emissions. To help with this, we will share our expertise and provide help in kind to the Government of Malawi to help them design their renewable energy strategy, deliver green growth and extend access to electricity.” (Pg 29) - “We will continue to work with countries around the globe. Achieving success depends on Scotland acting as a team: that is the heart of our One Scotland approach. We will work with the wider public sector, institutions, businesses and communities – as well as overseas partners– to secure our international objectives.” (Pg 41) - “Importantly, while our international approach supports Scotland’s Economic Strategy, it also recognises our commitment to human rights. Our relationship and partnership with Malawi will remain important. Global economic development has lifted millions of people around the world out of poverty and improve equality. However, high levels of deprivation and inequality remain and that is why Scotland will use its international engagement to continue to act as a good global citizen.” (Pg 41) |
